Facts about funding the Catholic Church in Slovenia

The Constitutional Court of Slovenia established that the constitutional principle of religious communities implies that material help to churches and other religious communities is permitted if they engage in socially useful activity.

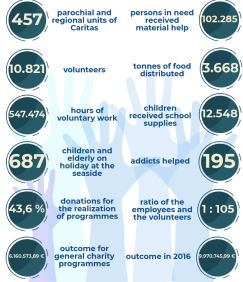

State funding of 48% of social contributions of religious workers represents the social security of religious workers in the part when they engaged in general socially useful activity.

The Catholic Church and its legal entities lead their religious activities exclusively by gifts of believers and donations.

The yearly state share of funding religious communities is 0,8 Euro per religious member, the lowest share in the EU.
